Dear Professor Halík,

Today I write to you in my capacity as Grand Chancellor of the Luxembourg School of Religion & Society.

You are the outstanding theologian in Europe: your personal experience, your studies in different disciplines, your work both as a professor and as a pastor, come together in a work for which the Church must be very grateful. You are not only aware of the necessity of renewing theology as a contribution to the life of the faithful; with your own style, you touch thousands of students and then thousands of readers.

You had already the opportunity to discover the young Luxembourg School of Religion & Society. It is our contribution to developing a theology that is rooted in the life of today's people, in the dialogue with people of good will, and in the Catholic faith.

Therefore, I would like to invite you to become a "honorary professor" of the Luxembourg School of Religion & Society. It would be a great honor and support for our young institution to count you among the members of its Academic team.

I truly hope that you will accept my invitation.

The director of the LSRS, Prof. Dr. Jean Ehret, whom you know, is available for any questions and for following up on this letter.

Thanking you for your inspirational service to the Church and your lifelong testimony of faith,
I remain,

Yours truly in Christ,

+ Jean-Claude

Grand Chancellor of the LSRS

The "Honorary Professor" of the Luxembourg School of Religion & Society

The Grand Chancellor of the LSRS may confer the honorary title of "Honorary Professor of the LSRS" on eminent personalities whose intellectual and other work constitutes, at least at European level, a significant contribution of excellence, recognized by their peers at international level, to the LSRS's fields of research, and who agree to support the LSRS with their work, advice, and reputation. (From the internal rules and regulations of the LSRS)
